We created a subsidiary to sell after-sales services. The company has invested in several billboards at the side of major roads. We need to close the sale as soon as possible. What's the competitive advantage in your strategy? I only deal with the decision maker in each store. Direct mail is effective, but expensive. The emotional benefits of this car include a large colour choice and luxury extras. We can offer you favourable terms if you buy now. A mass advertising campaign will be very expensive. Niche advertising will allow us to reach the most suitable customers. Selling your product at a higher price increases the perceived benefits because people associate high prices with quality. The special point-of-sale promotion will only last another hour – buy now!
